

Disney's
THE
LION KING
S E R I E S I I

Through the wilds of Africa and into the hearts of children young and old, Disney's animated blockbuster has become an instant classic. With a 90-card series, SkyBox has captured the spectacular beauty of the film through the story, characters and themes of the movie. Not to mention pop-up cards, top designs, and other extras you've come to expect from the leading entertainment trading card company in the industry. But, if you've seen the movie, and collected all 90 trading cards, you're not getting the full picture.

Disney's
THE
LION KING
S E R I E S I I

SkyBox is proud to introduce The Lion King Series II. The second of the series, this collection picks up where the first ended. It concludes the story of Simba's journey to become king of the Pride Lands and offers a dazzling array of new images and designs. The 80-card set includes two beautiful 9-card scenic puzzles, an Animal Trivia subset, and three different sets of bonus cards—pop-ups, preproduction art, and foil-bordered cards.

Let your imagination follow you home when you collect the complete 170-card set of Series I and II trading cards from SkyBox. Only then will you get the full picture.

The Lion

Lion cubs are born with their eyes wide open, and at the age of six they are already full grown! Humans like to call them "king of the jungle," but lions don't usually venture into the jungle at all. Instead, they live in the plains, where their tawny coats blend perfectly with the rocks and sandy background.

Disney's
THE
LION KING
SERIES II

The Baboon

Baboons might be the fiercest monkeys in the jungle, yet they take tender loving care of their young ones. These creatures get around by walking on all fours and have gigantic teeth, making a baboon "smile" something to see! They live in herds, usually ruled by a single wise old male.

Disney's
THE
LION KING
SERIES II

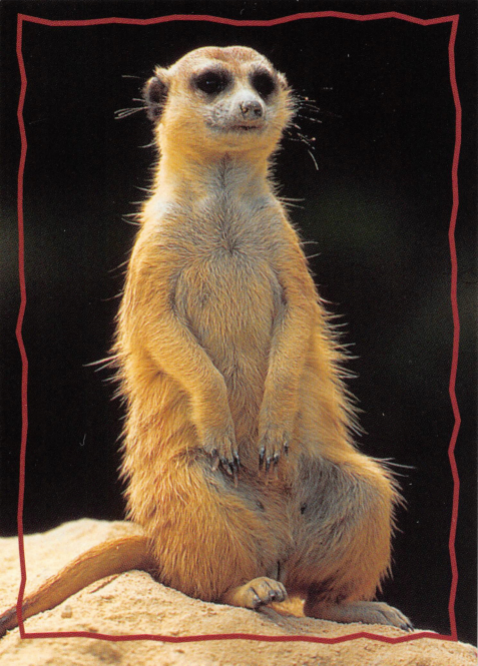

The Warthog

No one can say warthogs don't have ingenuity — these unusual fellows have been known to cozy up in the cool burrows that have already been dug out by other animals. It's easy to spot warthogs. With their large tusks and wartlike growths on their faces, humans call them ugly, but warthogs look just fine to each other!

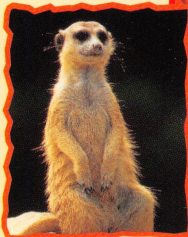

Disney's
THE
LION KING
S E R I E S I I

The Meerkat

Cute, but carnivorous. That's one way to describe the small, meat-eating meerkat. When they're not chowing down, meerkats like to burrow underground and they do so in groups. In fact, most meerkats live in colonies. While the group is at work or play, one or two meerkats serve as "lookouts" for possible predators.

Disney's
THE
LION KING
S E R I E S I I

The Hornbill

This colorful bird sports a gigantic bill topped off with a horny lump, so the name "hornbill" suits this feathered creature to a T. Not too surprisingly, the sound that comes from the bill is equally huge. It's definitely an attention getter when a hornbill sounds its ear-splitting "alarm-cluck" from its usual treetop perch.

Disney's
THE
LION KING
SERIES II

The Hyena

Scavengers of the night, hyenas are wolf-like animals who seek their prey after the sun goes down. Emitting bone-chilling yells, or "laughs," hyenas often strike fear in the hearts of other animals, who steer clear of this creature's powerful jaws. There's a little-known secret, however — hyenas are actually quite cowardly!

Disney's
THE
LION KING
S E R I E S I I

The Wildebeest

In the language of Afrikaans, wildebeest translates to "wild beast," probably because this animal is a very dangerous fighter when cornered. Also called a gnu ("noo"), wildebeest live in large herds and they are among the speediest animals in South America, trotting along at a steady clip using long strides as they advance.
